

Recurrent Safety Inspector Course (8 hours)

To stay current on relevant safety matters, Certified Safety Inspectors are required to attend the Update Class for Safety Inspector (yearly 8 hours) to remain certified.

If a Safety Inspector Certification status has expired, the safety manager has a three-month grace period after their expiration date to take the update course. After the three-month grace period, a Safety Inspector Certification status may only be reinstated by retaking the complete course. These annual 8 hours safety management training is organized to comply with the requirements from QESH Services N.V. to stay current as a Certified Safety Inspector. This course provides safety and health professionals with up-to-date knowledge required to successfully manage a companywide safety program.

Participants who successfully complete the course will receive a new Certified Safety Inspector Authorization card by QESH Services N.V.

The training is based on best safety practices and will include case studies, interactive workshops, situational awareness safety skills training, develop hardwired safety documents, safety communication etc.
